Head's Message

Mid-July and I find it difficult to think about what I might like to say about the year gone by - it seems like so long ago and we have already begun to plan for the 2002-2003 school year. BCS says good-bye not only to a large graduating class of Form VII and Form VI students but also to some very special people who have given a great deal of themselves to the School and who will be missed.

Katie Breen, a first year science teacher, became our new AT specialist and led the first ever Ondatjie Endeavour to Lapland. There is no doubt that she is a good teacher and will only get better. She hopes to teach in the Quebec City region.

Mr. and Mrs. Kranz came to BCS two years ago when we needed someone to take technology to the next level and that is what Reinhard Kranz did. BCS now offers computer courses in all senior forms and his leadership of the Technology Committee allowed the School to take some new initiatives. The most significant is providing on-line access in every students' room in the houses. Janet Kranz took on the demanding task of running Gillard House and there are many girls who will remember her thoughtfulness and support during her two years there. They return to their former school in Ontario.

Margot Dionne has talents that few schools get to appreciate. She has provided our students with challenges and they have succeeded. The performances that she has been able to draw from the BCS Players' Club have been remarkable but more importantly it is the drama classes who have benefited most. I am sure there are many who could never have imagined themselves learning lines and performing in front of others but they have and it can only have made them more confident as they move forward. Margot goes back to her true love - acting - as she rejoins the company at Stratford.

John Reid returned home for a few years when he and Marylea chose to come to BCS as houseparents - first in Glass and then in Smith. John, an Old Boy, has shown today's generation that it is alright to care about the guys in your house, your teammates and your school. His enthusiasm for BCS has been infectious and we know he will never be too far away even though he has moved back to Ottawa. Marylea will be remembered in her own right, especially by the students who she has tutored these past few years.

There are likely not many BCS houseparents who have looked after both boys and girls in the same house and I think that makes Mrs. Jelowicki rather unique! She has helped both junior girls and junior boys settle in to the routines of BCS and while their needs might have been different, her constant presence has made a difference. There were always students who had moved on to senior houses who still came back to seek her advice and they knew that they would always have a sympathetic ear. Jane and Krystian will divide their time between Great Britain and the Eastern Townships and Jane wants to promote BCS in England and Scotland - if anyone can, Jane can.

Nelson Williams leaves BCS to fulfill a dream and I can't imagine anyone who deserves it more! Nelson and Diane have been dedicated houseparents to McNaughton boys who will never forget what they have done for them. Nelson's commitment to all aspects of school life - sports, cadets, chapel and a variety of activities have made BCS a better school and he leaves gigantic shoes to fill. He takes that same enthusiasm to his new venture in Brockville and it is good to know he will continue to spend his time working with young people.

Reverend Peacock has played a special role as our BCS Chaplain and we know how much she has been missed - we couldn't find anyone to replace her! Her ability to serve the spiritual needs of a diverse community of students has made us a kinder and more understanding community. We know that she will continue to serve as she flies the northern skies with her husband, Bob.

Steve Zatylny also chose to leave before the year ended and his absence was felt by many in the final months of the year. His boundless energy and willingness to organize and supervise a wide variety of student activities made a difference to the quality of life.

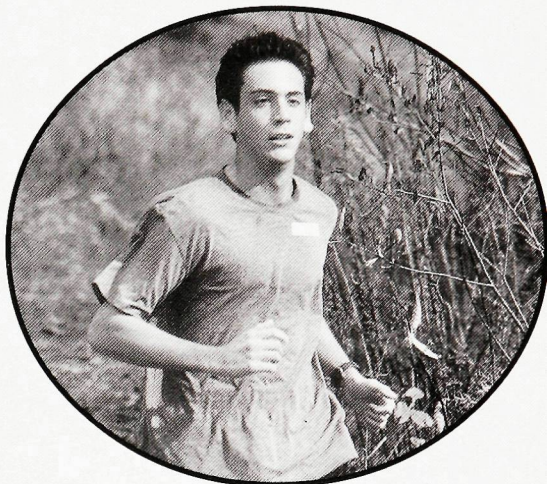

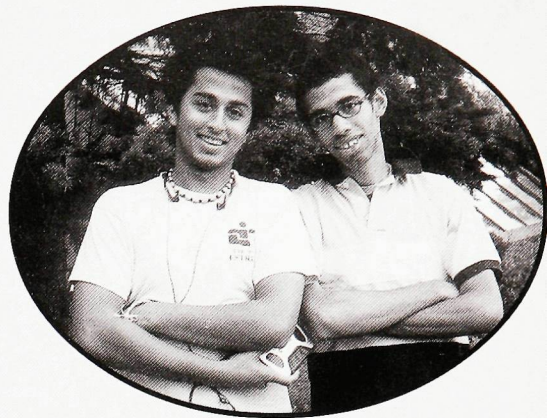

It seems befitting for me to use this space to say thank you to these people on behalf of the students and staff. As students, each of you will identify with particular people who have made a difference to you and I hope you will find time (not necessarily now) to let them know that you appreciated them and what they gave to you.

YEARBOOK COMMITTEE

A Time For Thanks

I am going to try to thank everyone involved in the making of this year's magazine, but they are almost too numerous to list...

This year we acquired a digital camera, and that was in large part due to you, the students', generosity.

To Nancy Layton, the support you've given us has been incredible. And Joe Stairs, officially the best unofficial photographer the school's ever had. Thanks also go to Edna Runions and Norma Maege for their support in the advertising campaign. We've had a great year, and this has been because of the parents and businesses that have contributed.

I'd also like to thank the Yearbook Staff this year. Some of your photography and ideas have been wonderful contributions.

This is beginning to sound like an exhaustive Academy Award speech, but there are two other people that need mentioning above the hundreds who have given something to this book. The first is Chris Reid, editor extraordinaire. The best parts of this book are his. The mistakes are mine. The second is to my wife Julie, whose assistance with copy editing, and the business side of things has kept this Yearbook running. She has an infinite amount of patience. Trust me on this one.

So thanks to all. I hope you enjoy this year's magazine.

Grier South

It has been an interesting year in Grier South, and an enjoyable one for me as a houseparent. Sometimes too serious, sometimes not enough....

As I leave after ten years in South I want to say thank-you to my family for all that they have endured during this time. I also want to say that I have enjoyed the adventure, and have been lucky enough to have experienced all Forms at one time or another under my direction. As well, a tremendous thank you to my TODs; Ms. Lane, Mr. Daigle, Mr. Kranz, and Tony, our BU.

To this year's house I say thank-you for giving me a great final year:

Yun-Ping – four years together – wow, how did you manage?

Randy, Francis, Mike – the Three Musketeers!! It's been a lot of fun!

Jon-Erik – keep working on the golf game, maybe some day you will beat me?????

Roger – your wrestling skills need improving

Jun – Christmas dinner at Mr. Gardner's house.....

Nic – thanks for keeping our academic average up!!!

Myung-Kuk and Joey – I hope you guys take a house cleaning course this summer, especially if you end up together next year

Derek – keep your hair cut for your new houseparent

Rolando – how tall are you going to get....?, and thanks for the tequila!!

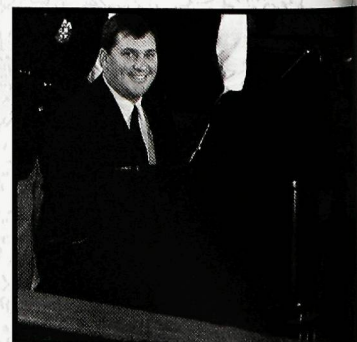

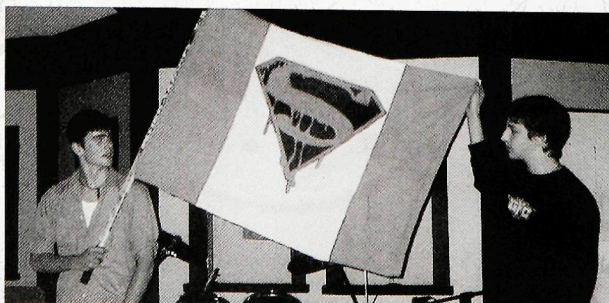

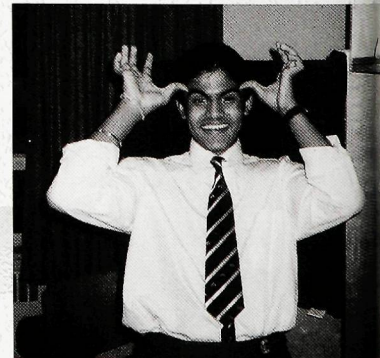

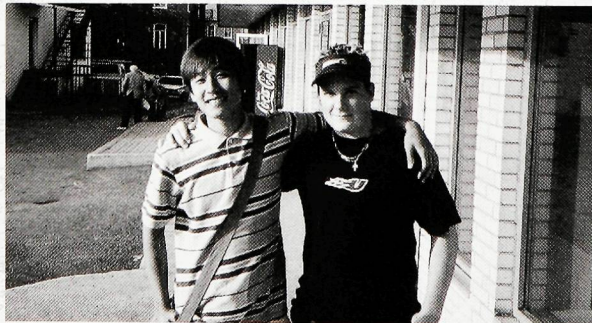

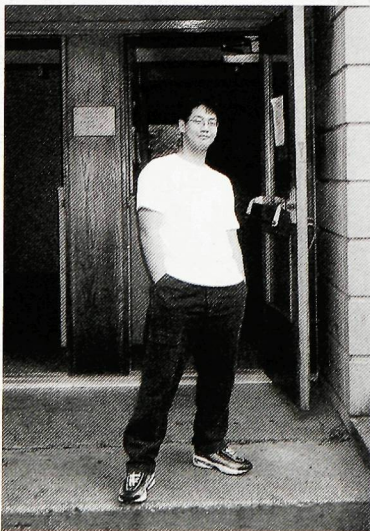

Rafael and Qasim – my two VII Formers – control your intake (hahaha)

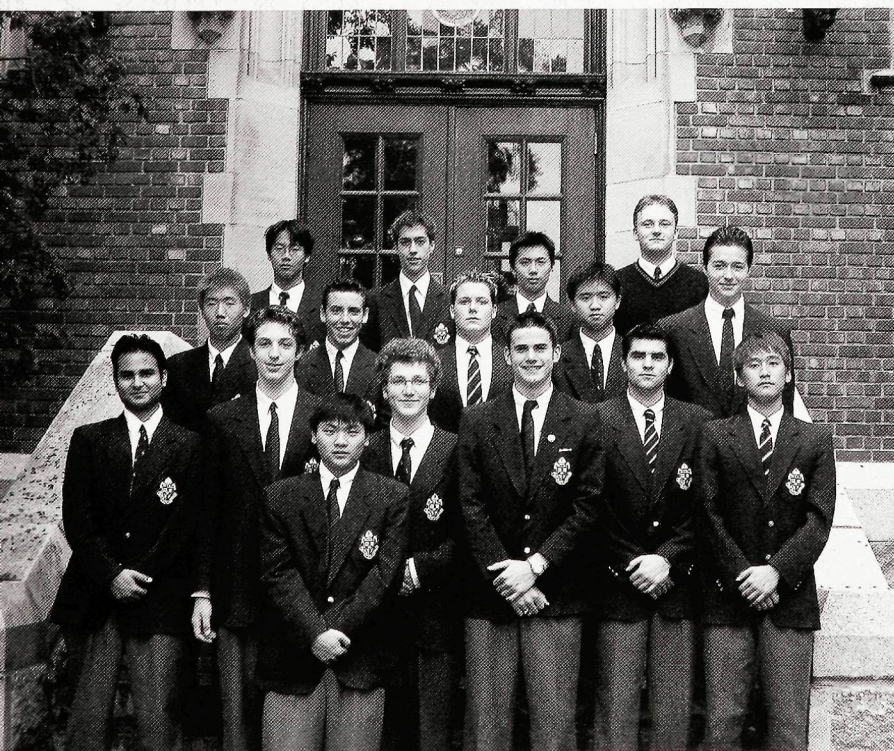

Gero – a great addition to our house!!

and finally Alex – what more can I say!!..... gros @#%

I hope you have enjoyed your stay at South, and I wish all of you the best of luck in the future. Don't be strangers.....

Grier North is the best house I've ever been the house-parent of.¹ The 2001-2002 gang had it all: charm, wit, dangerously good looks, and a rainbow of smells. Each boy lent a bit of himself to the "culture" of the house and to life at BCS.

Zahmat's elegance, groovy style and very clean room added a touch of class. Roberto broke so many hearts that we had to form the "Victims of Beckmann" support group. Robert changed more than anyone else this year: from anti-social, mean-spirited grouch to a stressed-out Tuck Master who occasionally smiled. Stephan was very fashionable...that is, fashionably late for everything. Diego was an innocent looking lad when he first arrived. A tongue piercing and a few cigarettes later, he developed into a true j.d. At first, Gurme was a bit of a mystery to us in GN. But, once we got to know him, we were all genuinely afraid of him. Mark is the most polite and friendly skateboarding, grunge rock-listening, Coca-Cola-dependent teenager you'll ever meet. Ki Baek amazed us all with his ability to function on two hours of sleep per night (of course, that was during prep). Who needs Brad Pitt when you've got Ben? We had to settle for the boy named after that big clock in London. We even had the Head Prefect living with us! Luckily, Sandy's maturity, leadership and model behaviour were left at the door every time he entered GN. Who wants to live with such a perfect person anyway – that would have been really annoying. Speaking of "perfect," J.D. was as close as you could get. A good student, mature, polite, responsible...what a jerk! Speaking of "jerks," Mike M. was as close as you could get. If he had woken me up a fifth time, I would have kept his stereo. Seriously folks, he wasn't really a jerk, he was actually more of a "big loveable" jerk. Sang Yeop (Tiger) could go days without laughing. This concerned me at first, but then I learned that he was actually from North Korea and had very little to be happy about. Mike O. rode an emotional roller coaster this year. Although he was smiling at the end of the ride, there were some interesting twists and turns along the way. Two "memorable" episodes were the baby-oil incident and rugby training camp (the grounds crew want to thank you for fertilizing the field). Chris' five-o'clock shadow, retreating hairline and fake accent made sense once we discovered that he was actually a twenty year-old who came back to high school to pick up chicks and kick butt in rugby. The final victim on this list is one of those "strong and silent" types. Andre rarely spoke. In fact, this bio is longer than his collective conversations for the year. What about the house-parent, you ask? Well, besides being referred to as a fascist dictator (thanks Robert), he wasn't too bad. Sure, he was bossy, annoying and a bit too motherly, but GN wouldn't have been the warm, comforting place it was without him. One more thing: the boys know that Val and Logan were the brains behind the whole operation. Leger was just a pretty figurehead.

¹ This is my first year as a house-parent. I loved all the stress-free days, and the extra sleep helped me keep a young and healthy complexion.

It wasn't that it had been another emotional weekend at Gillard, it was that no one knew what was actually going on. Everything seemed normal on the surface; Jen and Aisha occupied their regular spaces on the couches, and Annie was waiting by the microwave for her noodles, but something was definitely awry. Kat was nowhere to be found, having gone to Lenn for the fourth time in a day, and Caitlin was on her cell phone lamenting about the difficult choice she had to make between three young suitors. As usual, Anna and Alex were room restricted, and Irina was knocking on the Kranz's door. Nevertheless, something was iffy and no one could put their finger on it.

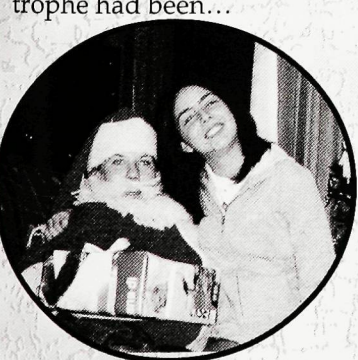

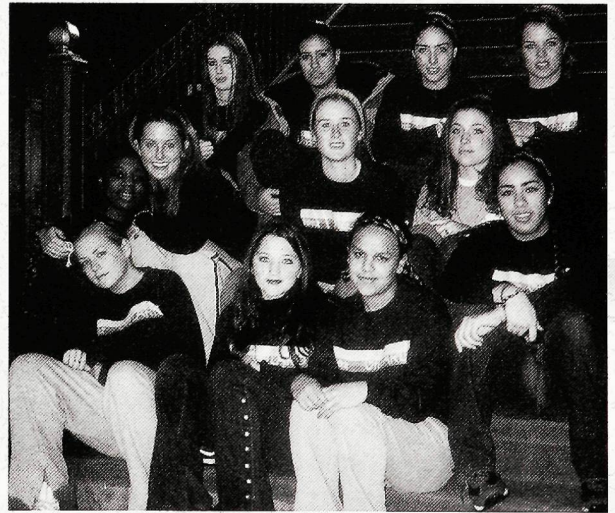

The walls were still bare of any sort of victorious banner, the sink was still full of dirty dishes, and there was still a shoe in the annex door, yet something was not right. Eseenam came into the common room, searching for someone to do her house captain duty, and Kirsten excitedly volunteered. Michiko, Jee Won and Maggie were gathered in the basement watching Moulin Rouge again, while Bambi had opted not to watch, and to dance around her room in her underwear instead. On the surface, everything seemed alright, yet disaster loomed in the air.

Bags were once again packed and stacked at the front door, guarded by Francesca and her beau. Anne was struggling to carry boxes upon boxes of CD's up to her new room, and while Anne was moving out, Kassie was moving the mice in. Maggy was discussing the new love of her life with anyone who would listen, while Gabby was desperately trying to reattach the annex phone cord so she could talk to her boyfriend from the privacy of her own room. Tara was frantically searching for a Coke can so she could prove her point to Nancy, and Megan was wondering how she could make a hypothetical pipe out of household objects. Allie suggested duct tape and safety pins, both of which she had an ample supply. It was Monday night, and Nadia was searching for a calculus assignment to "check answers" with. None of these events seemed particularly out of the ordinary.

It wasn't until just before bedtime that things began to seem daunting. Erin was actually in the annex, and Hae Min had left the comfort zone of her desk. Carolina, Gilda, Patti, and Martha were quiet, and Theresia wasn't wearing her moose pajamas. Lucia was on the corner of the couch watching "The Others" in English, Stephanie Lee was wearing something that didn't tie up in an odd place, and Carolyn was doing her homework.

Other than these strange occurrences, things appeared to be fine. Chelsea was screaming at somebody, Dorothy had just come back from a run and Vanessa was claiming rights to the basement for Queer as Folk. Krystal was yelling up the stairs for Jess, and Pei Lun was running around in her tiny flip-flops. Things were as perfect as an evening in Gillard could be.

It wasn't until lights out that everyone realized what the catastrophe had been...

GLASS HOUSE

The following is a product of two highly unimaginative housecaptains brainstorming, on short notice. So stop now unless you have nothing better to do. If you continue, prepare to be astonished by the lack of excellence in this text.

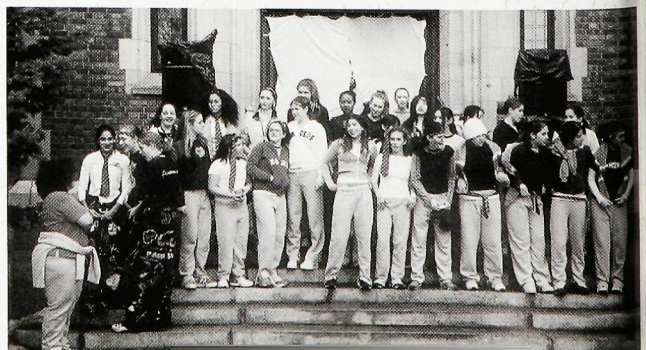

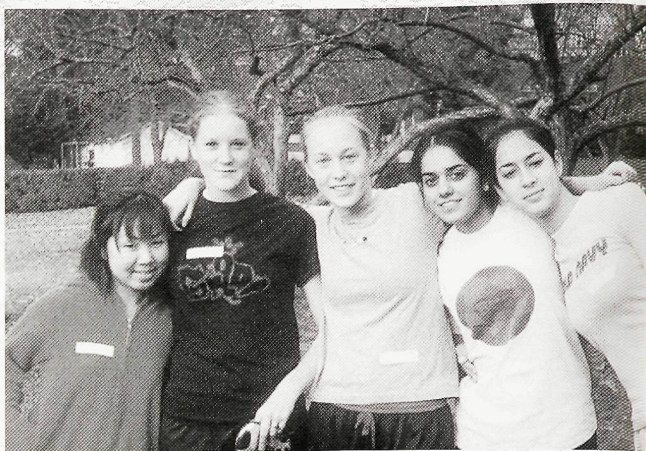

For example, had Arpun been the brains behind this article she would have given a Jarpun Rule poetry reading featuring the world famous Christina MC Lee. Now if Alley had written this... well actually she can't cause her arm is broken. But if the Wood sisters had written it, boys would be the topic of conversation, whereas Stella would talk of the lack at BCS. Christina the loud Mexican wouldn't have had the time to write this between gatings and room restrictions. Amelia is still waiting for her sheets to come back from the laundry thanks to her roommate Jena's liberty in using them.

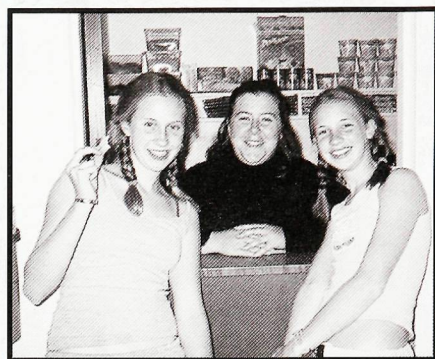

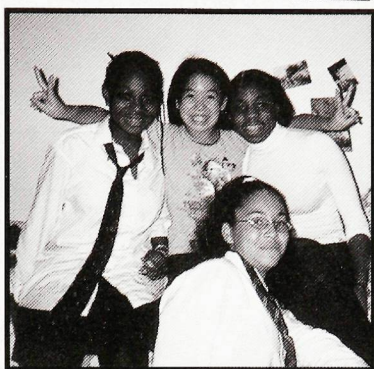

Jess our wonderful prefect is too busy cleaning out behind her heater. Rinko, where's Rinko? Jade and Cydia might write it, but they are caught under Jade's tidal wave of clothing. Andrea is occupied with other peoples cellicapnone (pronounced as written). Hanae lives in fear of expulsion so she doesn't do anything but play softball. Julia can't be found (the secret is that she's hiding in the ping pong room). Barbara would write it but she's busy dodging another 25 hours. Isabelle would write it but she can only spell SANDY.

Yvonne only likes writing Chinese on the chalk board and after the translation thanks to Chiao Tien we know its not that nice. Yuka is too busy fending off the older boys. Adrienne would write it but she's with her turtle. Joannie volunteered but she couldn't reach the computer without stools, so we said no. Sarah Leavitt said she would but she's too busy with running the school. Ashlea has a whip and that scared us then we found out it was a crop and that changed everything, but she still wasn't allowed to write it.

Jimena is out of the country - she's at Chapman. Isa's too busy importing candy from Mexico. Max is lucky enough to have senior privileges, so we are not giving her any more. Natasha is too busy with B2K, UHUH. Maria could be the author but she's too "awake". Jenny's just too nice to write this. Crys is napping under her desk and Emily is too busy with her MSN fan club. We think texts give Rebecca nightmares (hint text lang lang lang), so she couldn't write it. Sarah Henderson is far away in Australia. Karina is with Melissa and Melissa is with Chris. Tomoko is doing her hair.

We don't think that Melanie's cute French accent could be translated into English. Jess NK is too shy, when we asked, she ran and hid. Captain Melina is too worried about rugby. Our raptor Grayson had to leave us so she couldn't be the author. The BUs didn't qualify and this task is beneath our beloved Julie. So that leaves two amazing people, think beauty, think intelligence, you got it, it was GI Jena and Samantha.

SMITH HOUSE

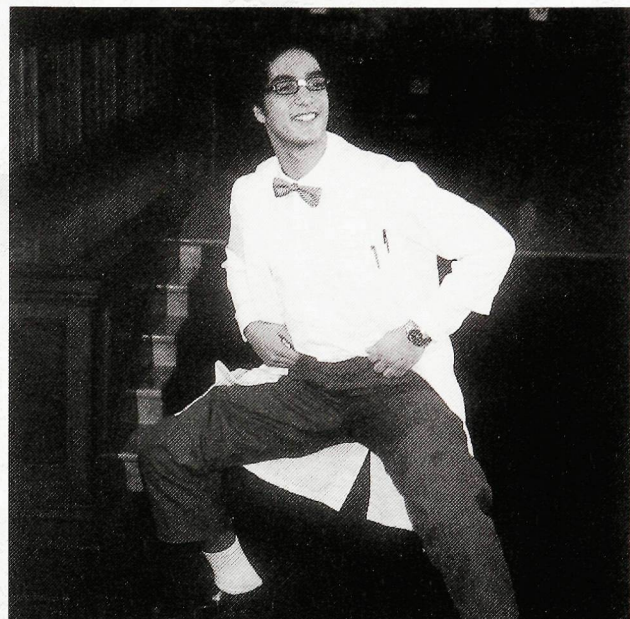

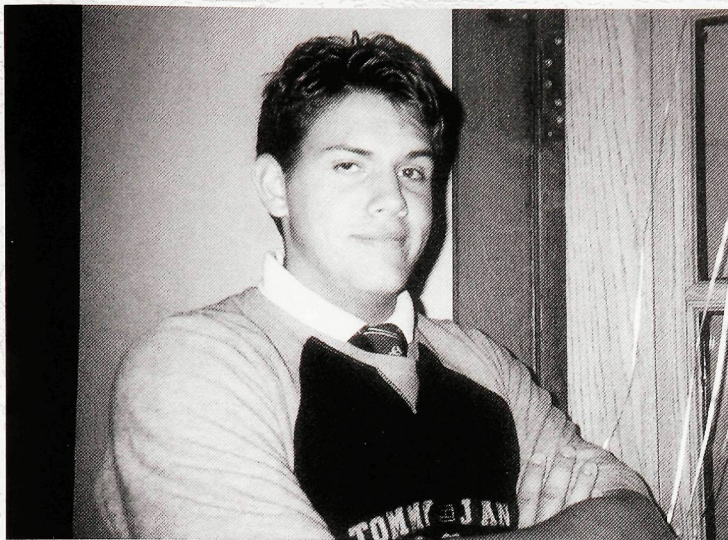

TyPiCaL sMiTh

Its 2:13 AM and its time again for a wakeup call & a loud thump- Thorston's bed is vibrating and he can't sleep. Travis is permanently on- That is, ingesting his sugar and caffeine, watching star trek on the tube

& Vince and Murphy, the good, the ugly and the filthy and masters of their dump. Ryan, the late night loner walks mindlessly through the hallway, while Vince is showing off his charisma and his desires towards the men and the boys of the house. The phantom threesome of Steve, Marosi and Phillip sit silent in their room, Philou, the brand new breakable, Steve - not quick enough with the click - jumps as Mr. Fines enters the room. Marosi arguably disappears. JuJu shows off his wisdom and so much more, while Fahim, the king of carnival flaunts his purple monkey-ness. Thomas is eating his 547th Big Mac on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Arjun, our Scooby, our little pet monkey and the brains of our operations watches as his favorite team loses on TV

& Our big bear and future rock star, Josh, plays mellow tunes on his guitar to a crowd of about two, while the crazy German, Paul decides to get aggressive to defend his infinitely lost causes. Scott wishes he could relate each one of his classes to Sex and the City and Friends, while Greg wakes at 5 PM, all gritty from the crazy night before and gets ready for a session of calculus while watching Jeopardy. Jimmy the Boy Scout with the progressive "stairs" haircut enters Pablo and Kevin's love shack, only to hear loud scratching noises. Pablo, a room restricted subscriber has passed out on the floor, with an ID, a bag and a bowl of rotten noodles. Daniel sleeps for the 5th time that day, waking from coma for a smoke, only to be busted by the big Johnny himself. David goes wacko on us and decides to shatter a window and demolish an entire door with his mighty rage. Who's the prettiest of them all? Axel, that's who. With his shaggadelic afro, he lets a nuke rip, as Ian runs for shelter with his massive Braveheart replica sword. "Hey Mr. C, is that my hat? And my laptop?" The kings of Smith officially commence another "P.T Session" broadcasted live on the M-S. Memories are recorded, times are remembered. The end is near and so is the time to bring it in: We all stand proud and fierce - Chests raised high - WE are the champs - cheerful and victorious. Farewell to Smith and congrats to all the guys for another great one.

Missing : Chris Durrant

Mr. Dutton: Thanks for filling us in on the planetary alignments and the opera schedules. The whistling through the corridors and singing in class will never be forgotten.

Jonathan: Who and where are you?

Gabriel: Hey buddy, try and find a new schoolbag, the one you have right now is too big for you.

Shawn: "Zzm'en va ffaire des musssscsles." The poor kid's got a lisssssp!

Charles: There's more to life than Nintendo.

Luke: Big P' with his Afro comb but always finds himself speechless.

James: Stay out of the garbage cans; they're dirty.

Julien: Likes his uniform...?

Stanislav: Got milk Shorty?

Chris H.: The King of Dungeons and Dragons.

Richard: Stop playing.

Iskender: Get to chapel on time! Nice haircut though.

P.A.: Where is he...? Oh, in the shower with....

Chris D.: "Robot Boy"

Daniel: Stay strong and live long man.

Tim: Finally admitted to being "Happy."

Jordan: A cool guy – most likely to be like his father. Keep the flow Jay Stud.

Russell: Please don't burn shoes in the microwave.

Shunichiro: Keep it real Bruce Lee.

Josh: Dude, your girl's mom is You're a skin headed monster.

Colin: Peace to the blue eyed blondy – Ross' Pretty Boy.

Clement: Damn POSER, you must be a good squash player by now. By the way, Pull Ya Pants Up!

Michel-Antoine: Our own little Wolverine.

Louis: Lou Lou, you can't wear a leather jacket with shorts. Watch the speed bumps the Civic might break in half. The scooter suits you more. And we hate to break this to you but you're not SAM!

Sam: Stop with the "Dirty Sanchezes" and try and keep it in. Also, you're not GOD! Sorry. Hey Rose has a huge nose by the way!

Joselito: Scrosalito, the super scooter boy with his supped up Honda.

Andy: The Power Tripn' Prefect. It's okay though. By the way, how's the axel on your car?

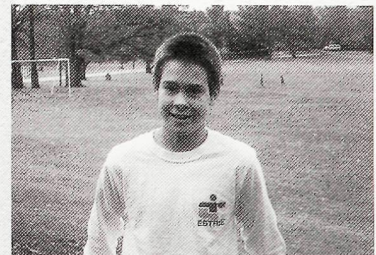

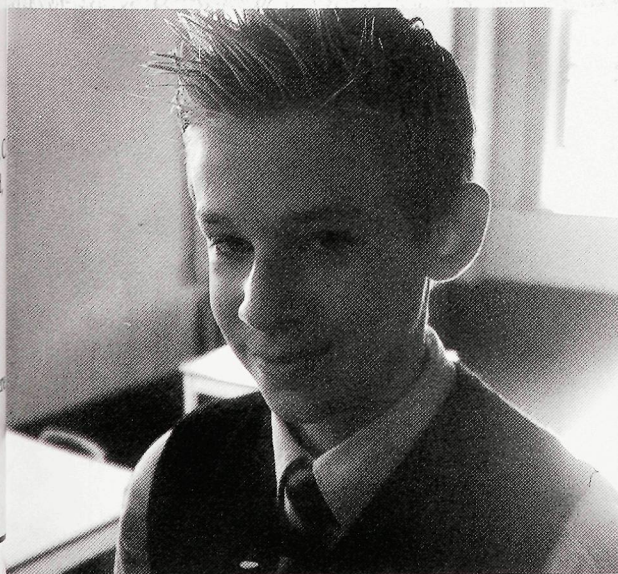

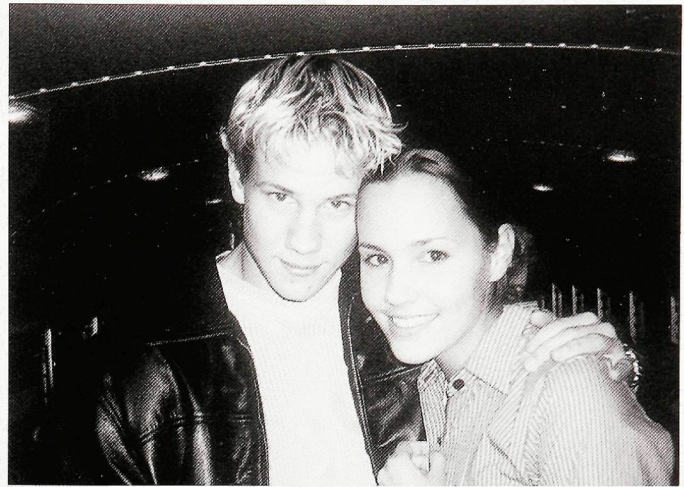

Kevin: Keep on running and don't forget Maggie on the way.

Chris Reid: Reid Junior. Pete will get you. And stay away from The Lion so they don't have to deprefect you again.

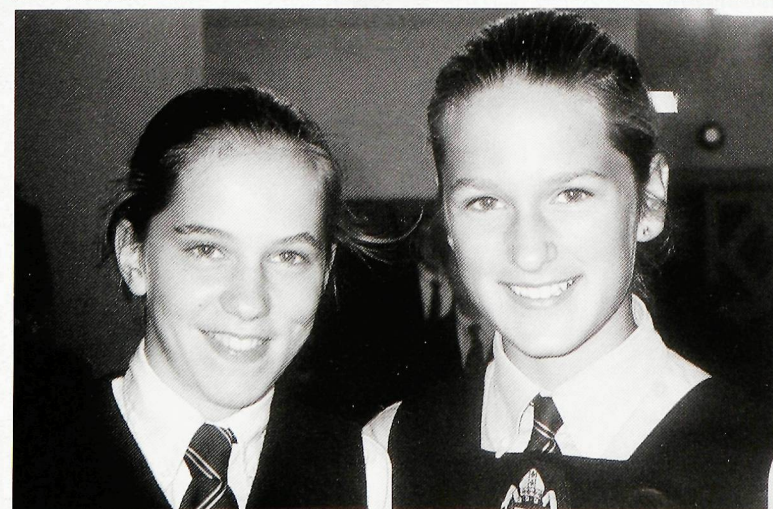

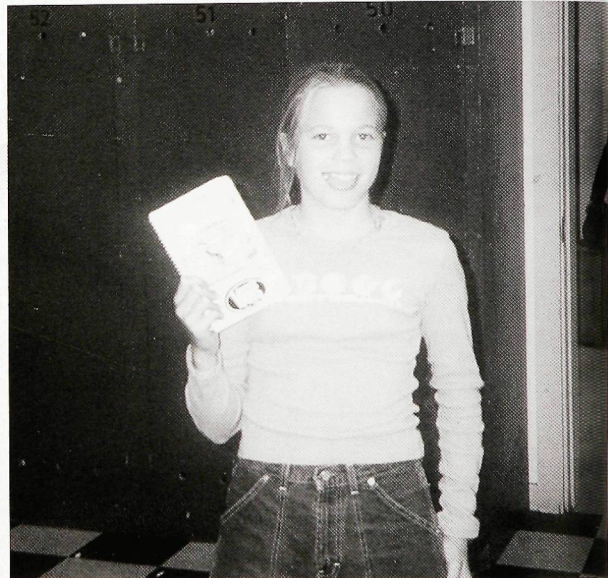

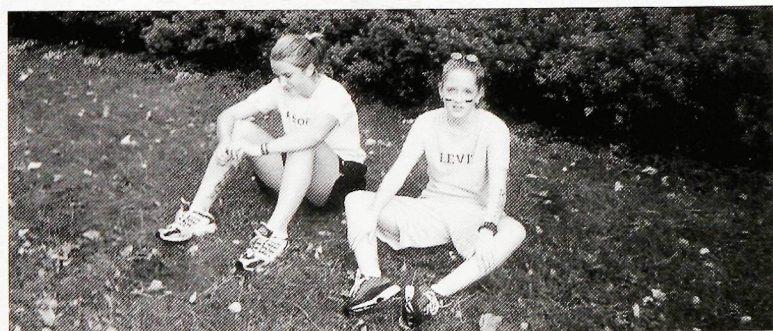

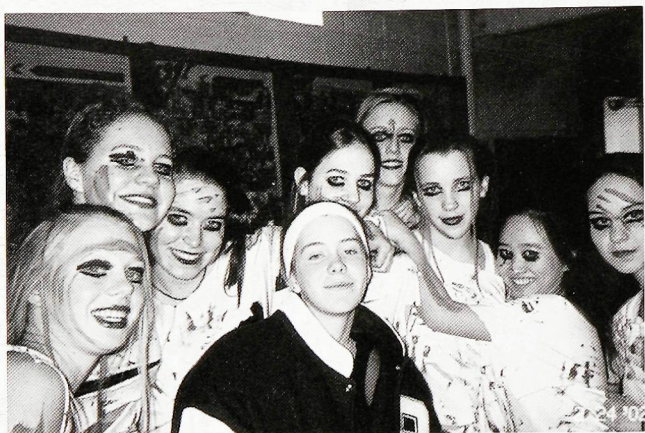

And to the Kings (House Captains) of Ross House, Paul and Thierry...

Thierry: "Eh Ow You Doin'." "Check les pitounes man." A very odd boy this one is. People love to hate him, but are always drawn in by a certain French charm that only he possesses. His favorite pass times constitute of performing the "Brain," the "Bull Dog," and the infamous "Screaming Eagle". He may seem harmless from the outside with his anorexic eating habits, but be warned, IT is very dangerous, he will eat all your food. He is armed with the most painful of hand weapons: "The SAKOSH." Be very careful around him when you see a Grinch type grin on his face. And if he hasn't taken his pills, may God help us all. But never forget, there is a nice guy under his violent but sly outer shell. Every so often, this nice guy comes out to play, and it truly is a rare and gorgeous sight when you get to know it. Hold back on the Poutine Pepper Boy. Thierry may be the source to a large amount of my emotional pain, but I don't know where I would be without the beautiful child. The kid really knows how to put a smile on your face. This boy's charismatic personality is unbeatable. It's been a blast buddy. Kocka foreva brotha, and thanks for "Claque – Pin," mon mot préféré en français. Later.

Paul: "Eh Ow You Doin' " "I'm bigger than you are, I'm higher up in the food chain...get in my bellyyyyyy!" You better watch out because Paul's Ninja Turtles underwear exists for a reason...It's for his gymnastic class, hahaha. Although Paul CANNOT go anywhere during the weekends and the breaks, he's still a very attractive young fella; he knows how to handle the ladies! And although he has been my target for most of my frustration releasing, being House Captains with him and having him as a very good friend has been awesome. You're ½ part of the kings of ROSS, and the other ½ is Thierry, but everyone knows that already! You're a great guy to be around dude, and your intimate moments with K——L are super safe with me. Peace out and live long Kazeem!

Fifth Row: C. Lessard, C. Charpentier-Coté, J. Lessard

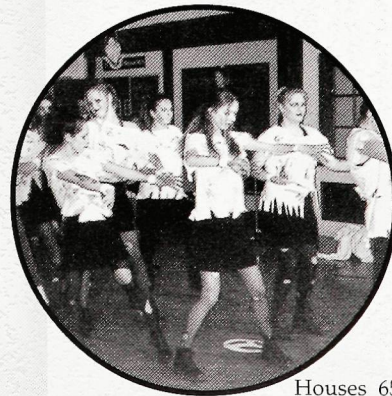

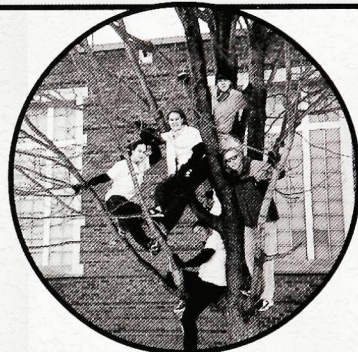

A typical morning in Ross begins the moment you step into the science building at 8:15. First, you are welcomed by the overwhelmingly strong scent of the remains of some Chemistry experiment gone wrong. You make your way up the stairs, dragging your unbearably heavy schoolbags behind you, and fight your way into the green-tinged common room where chaos reigns...

First, you spot Josi, Youna and Courtney, who are alight with a sort of radioactive glow from one too many trips to the tanning salon. On our relatively new cushions- the first decent-looking set since 1976- Armine, our newest recruit from the wonderful world of Gillard, looks confused, while Emilie, Kaitlin and Jennah sit around as Bridget tells another one of her pointless stories. Janina, Chisato and Krystina pretend to be quiet- you wouldn't know it, but really they're the rowdiest in the house- and the silence is broken by Katherine C.C.'s bellowing voice screaming "Salut chere!" Megan, Maryse and Lily lie sprawled on the floor laughing like dead beetles while Cristelle and Kym dance like supermodels and Ethnie struts like one.

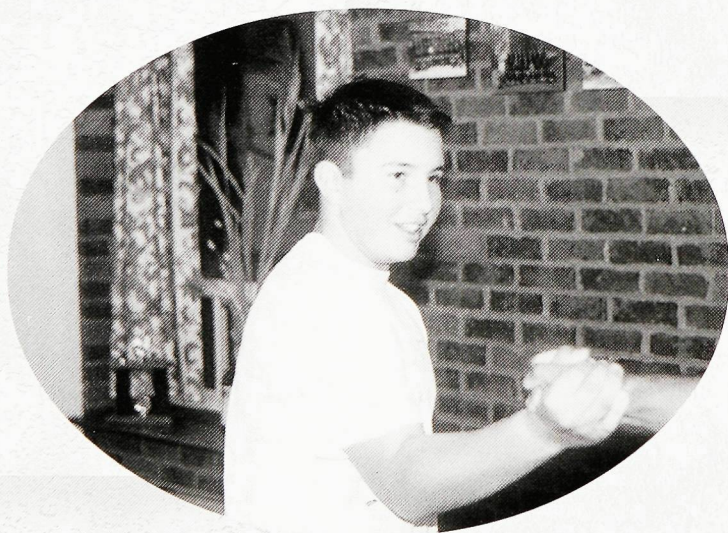

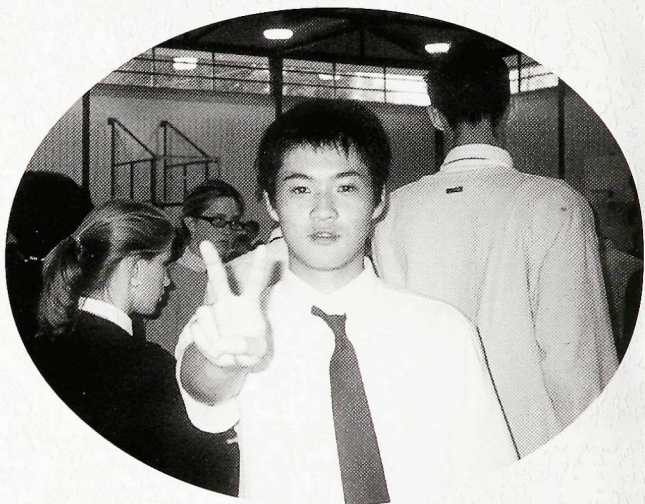

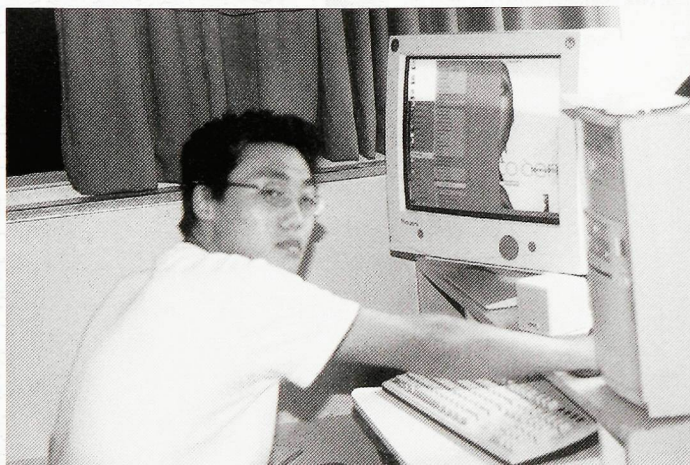

You can hear Jen Harvey and Charlotte giggling by their lockers outside, and Myriam gets along with everyone and does last-minute emergency breaks to McDo's. Justine and Clemence dazzle everyone with their eyes and Amy is beset with people asking her math questions. Jen Kranz is nowhere to be seen, but Marie-Pier and Kathy slip quietly in and out on their way to chapel. Sarah surprises us with her amazing voice while Kelly and Brianna help Emma hobble around like a cripple and Mary, Sue and Gigi hop into Sue's car for a quick trip to Riverview before the bell rings.

Caro makes her entrance with her perfect hair and buns, and Kumiko has somehow managed to make her uniform look funky and fashionable. Steph practices her dancing for the upcoming chapel announcement while trying to scrape the gum out of her hair. Suddenly the bell rings, the anarchy disperses, and the day begins as we make our way off to chapel to meet "Our Girl", Mrs. Holland, who searches desperately for us and hopes that we arrive on time for once....

(*Spirited, spunky and spontaneous, the Ross Girls have made quite the impression this year. We are a dynamic and diverse group of young ladies that rule the school in both work and play and we contribute everywhere with a grace and sophistication that Ross have never seen before!)

Fifth Row: G. Gribble, C. Werner, JP Bouchard, N. Hanna, Mr. D. Pfliger

Missing: Robert Kelly

On the last morning of King Nelson of Bald's reign of terror in the kingdom of McNaughton, the beautiful Queen Diane radiantly wakes from a wonderful slumber beside her loyal, yet disturbed husband. On his final walk down the hallways of the house he reminisces of the past nine years of all the kids who have lived under his roof: some good, many bad, but all great fun. His last group, needless to say the best group he's ever had, wake up to him at 7:15 am without fail and with big smiles on their faces as they see him. After the graduation he walks through the halls with a bounce in his step, toupee flying everywhere, to see his boys one last time...

BEN: With his life partner, Stefan, are talking quietly. Then as soon as he sees he has been spotted, Stefan dives out the window with a guilty look on his face.

MAX: Looks pensive after he realises just how much food has been stolen from his room.

RICARDO: Is somehow playing fucho and moonlight sonata on the piano at the same time.

COLIN: Devises ways as to how he can beat JP.T in Unreal.

SEB: Has his door closed. As Mr. Williams opens it, a huge cloud of smoke streams out of the room. He finds Seb with his head out the window...enough said.

CHRIS: Is still staring at the photo of Melissa, while recovering from the best flipping in the history of Mc.Naughton.

BIG PUN: Is, even after inspection, trying on his army uniform: deciding which beret looks better with his eyes.

RODNEY, T-DAWG, DEREK, RAMZI, and SABIH: Are all in T-Dawg's room rubbing the bunny-man.

ERIC: Screams at Mr. Williams "I won't open tuck I'm sleeping!"...only to realise who it is, and races down to the tuck in a state of fear.

ARMEN: Also not realising that Nelly is "towering" over him, screams: "S?@$ Everywhere!", while pulling hair out of his head... and then quietly continues to play with Paul.

JOHN: Is still wondering why he is more intelligent on Thursdays.

GREIG a.k.a. Finch, a.k.a. HITMAN #22: Is still sleeping while he has the phone attached to his face while Jess is waiting anxiously.

YUICHI: Fly kicks Nelly and follows up with a fireball and uppercut...on his Playstation.

SCOTT: Is applying his non-existent Nicotine Patches for a craving he doesn't want to quit.

ADRIAN STIFLER: Is fending off all the boys in the house to save his picture of his mom.

PETER: He continues to stare at the wall when suddenly he feels some water drip down his face.

JP T: Is wondering why David doesn't want him to put a lighter near his nose...O Canada!

DAVID: Is getting angry that no one reads the sign on the door: "FOR THOSE WHO ENTER...NO FARTING!"

MIKE: Is busy dealing with contractors from the Korean noodle company, cracking his neck and collating anime "cartoons"—at the same time he is sleeping.

JP BUTCH: After a whole year of playing the most pointless computer games he is now finally attempting to get a 17 on the online miniput game.

MATT: Se prepare encore pour sa cocotte, sa belle princesse...! SWED... ST for sure!

NICK AND PARSEH: Are still in their room giggling contently in their boxers, while Parseh is "singing" his concerto.

A Word to our TOD's

Mrs. Holland: thanks mommy for extinguishing the fiery testosterone in the house.

Flee-e-grrrr: no matter how hard you try you will never master your stroke...in mini putt

Mr. Healy: Sir, no matter how often you cross your arms or how big your chest is, we still won't do work.

Andrew: Thanks for showing up every once in a while, it was fun when you could make it.

SOME NOTEWORTHY EVENTS FOR THE YEAR IN MC.NAUGHTON:

MOST FLIPS IN ONE NIGHT: The confidential record was broken (along with the wall) by T-Dawg who was flipped a total of 17 times.

PERSON WHO SLEEPS THE MOST: It is a close tie between Mike Cha, Grieg Gribble and the King himself.

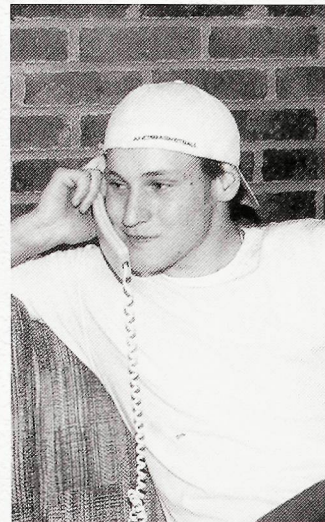

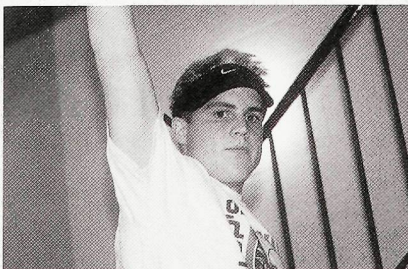

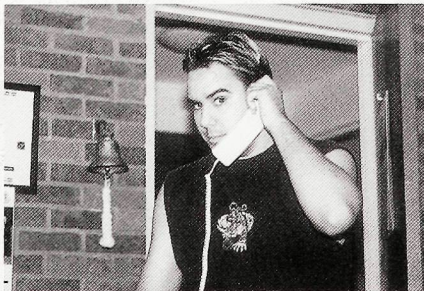

AVERAGE TIMES THE SECURITY GUARD COMES PAST THE HOUSE: 11:45pm, 12:30am, 1:45am and 3:45am

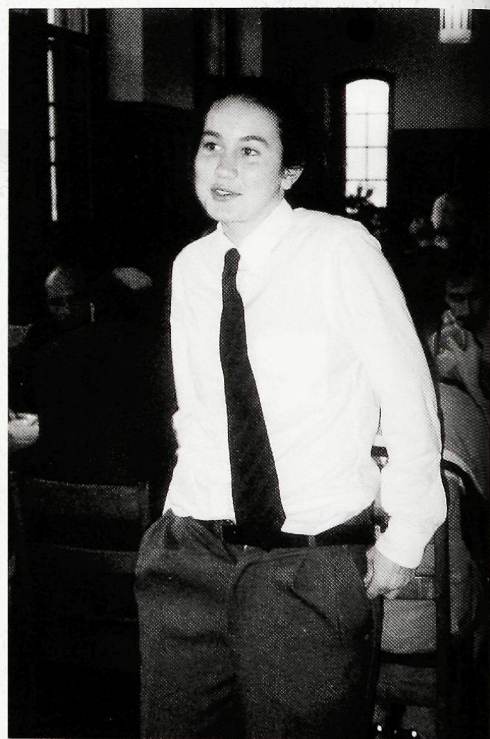

PERSON WHO DESOILED THE PICNIC TABLE THE MOST TIMES: Scotty!!!!

WHEN CANADA BEAT THE U.S IN THE HOCKEY FINAL: Seeing Big Pun and Adrian realize that maybe their country isn't #1.

...And finally to Mr. Williams thank you for putting up with us, it has been a fantastic year and we wish you all the best in the future.

Mc.Naughton will never be the same without your driving spirit and passion for the house. We will miss ya mate...

Always be a first rate version of yourself, instead of a second rate version of someone else. Being different is gooood.
Dot u will always be the one, Ian, Dudu, KJ, perpetual chain that builds up until the two ends match. Thanks for everything. LIFE IS BEAUTIFUL.

THE LAST LAUGH

Have you heard this one? ... How many teachers does it take to time a race? ...

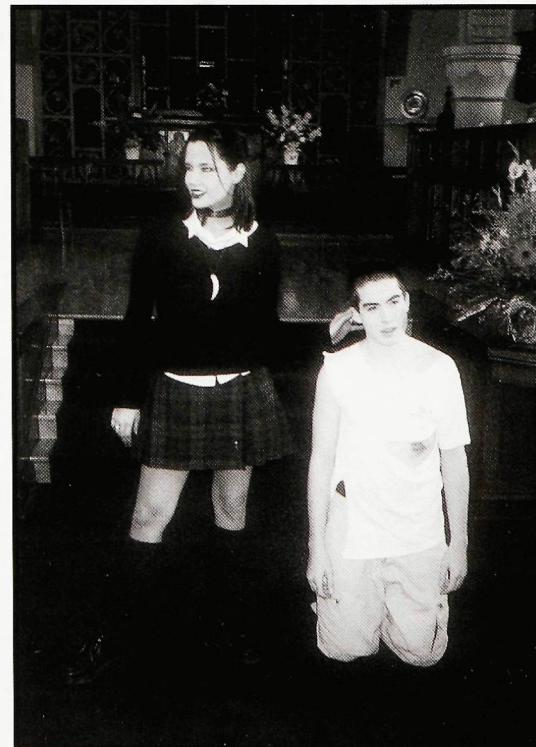

"Psst ... Do you know you have a monkey on your ..."
"Yes. Yes I know. Thank you."

Can someone tell that Yearbook Geek to sit down?!? I'm trying to see the teachers.

There's a Hogwarts joke in here somewhere, but it's almost too easy.

I think there's a line from American Pie that fits.
